BROOKLINE BABY DIES IN POND

FIRE ROUTS THEM—When fire swept their home on Pond street, Lynn, Norma Goodwin, Barbara Kelley, Laura Kelley, and Eleanor Kelley (l. to r.), were driven to the street. Despite the fact that she wore no shoes, Eleanor ran to a fire alarm, a quarter-mile away, and sounded the alarm.

Two Women Save 6 From Death As Homes Burn in Lynn, Saugus

Two young women were heroines today in thrill fire rescues in Lynn and Saugus.

Eleanor Kelly, 20, saved her mother and two sisters from possible suffocation or burning, then ran a quarter of a mile barefoot and clad only in nightclothing to a nearby fire station for help when fire broke out in her home in Lynn today.

She was awakened by acrid smoke pouring into her bedroom.

"My own coughing woke me up," she said. "The first thing I thought of was to call mother and my sisters."

She aroused her mother, Mrs. Edward Kelly, 48, then her sisters Bertha, 16, and Laura, 21, and little Priscilla Pendleton, her 10-year-old niece.

The four groped through smoke-filled rooms to safety and Eleanor then raced to the fire station. The interior of their 200-year-old house, on Pond street, Lynn, was swept by flames and the family lost practically all clothing and furniture.

In Saugus, Mrs. James Naples, 31, of Richards street was bathing her daughter Anna, 3, when she detected the odor of smoke coming from the basement.

Opening the cellar door, Mrs. Naples was met by a rush of smoke and flame. Nearly overcome by the blast, the young mother was trapped for several moments but finally succeeded in struggling back to her baby, Anna, and another daughter, "Chickie," 4, on the second floor.

Their means of escape cut off, Mrs. Nayles climbed through a second-story window and clung with her children to the small roof of a bay window. Leo Hebert, a next door neighbor, raised a ladder and carried the mother and children to safety.

The Naples home was ruined by the fire. Damage was estimated at $3000 by fire officials.

MIAJA'S WAR PLANES BATTLE REDS' REVOLT AGAINST SPAIN PEACE

MADRID, March 7 (AP)—General Jose Miaja's new republican defense government used warplanes in attempts to crush an uprising of "some troops" but announced late today that the Communist-inspired rebels were still holding out "in a few scattered points and buildings."

Major Eduardo Medrano, chief of the press and propaganda department of the new government, which has formed to obtain a peace with Generalissimo Franco, declared:

"Republicans, however, are steadily dominating the situation."

(Havas, French news agency, said in dispatches to Paris that a Madrid broadcast announced Republican planes were bombing centers of Communist resistance in the capital. After the bombardments, noise of firing in the streets ended.)

NO REDS IN CABINET

"The movement will soon be completely crushed," Medrano said.

The Miaja government, which succeeded that of Premier Juan Negrin and included no Communists, tried to reassure Madrid citizens by broadcasts that the populace should not be frightened by the presence of fighting planes over the city.

"It is the old Republican aviation force standing loyally and unconditionally behind the defense coucil government," one radio explanation said.

In the early morning there was cannon and machine-gun fire in outlying sections and isolated snipers kept up an intermittent fire within the city.

NEGRIN FLEES TO PARIS

"Let's come back to common sense and I assure you the war will end soon," Miaja declared in a radio broadcast today.

Last night he appealed for a "worthy peace."

"The reason for the formation of the defense cabinet was to end the war in a humane and honorable manner," Miaja said today. "That's our mission."

Referring to the Communist uprising, he asked:

"Are people trying to fight for

GENERAL CASADO

Wanders to Death While At Play; Body Recovered

Little Jackie Crowley's mother called him for lunch today from the rear of the Crowley home in Walter avenue, Brookline.

But Jackie, two years and five months old, didn't answer.

Even as the mother was calling, Brookline police and firemen were taking the body of little Jackie out of Leverett Pond, on the Brookline-Jamaica Plain line, where many other youngsters have lost their lives.

Jackie and three-year-old John B. ("Buddy") McNutt, his next door neighbor, had been playing in Jackie's backyard and they were not missed when they wandered out and down to the pond, about 400 yards distant.

Some time later Buddy arrived back at the house, breathless.

"Jackie failed in the water," he told Jackie's grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Crowley, who lives on the other side of Jackie's house.

The grandmother, believing Jackie merely had slipped in a puddle, was questioning Buddy when she heard fire engines.

SIGHT BOY IN POND

Calling to others in the house and to Jackie's mother, Mrs. Crowley hastened toward the pond, the others following.

At the pond some workers pruning trees had sighted the body of the boy, floating about 20 feet offshore, mostly submerged but with the back of the head above the surface.

They had notified police, and so had Mrs. Gertrude Bailey of Jamaicaway, Jamaica Plain, who, looking through binoculars across the pond, had seen the excitement on the Brookline shore.

Brookline police and firemen responded, police arriving first and attempting to drop a life preserver over the boy's head, but without success.

Captain Frank Malloy of Ladder 2, who had responded with Deputy Chief John B. McDonald and a crew with pulmotor equipment, waded into the pond up to his waist, then threw a looped line out over the boy's form and drew it toward him.

FAIL TO REVIVE VICTIM

For several minutes firemen and police worked over the boy at the scene while his mother, Mrs. Rose Crowley, watched, sobbing.

When efforts to revive the boy failed, he was placed in the police ambulance, manned by Stephen Tonra and James Green, and rushed to Children's Hospital, with firemen working over him on the way and with the mother, grandmother, uncle and aunt following in a car.

At the hospital, when little Jackie was pronounced dead, his mother collapsed.

Jackie's father is employed as a mechanic by the Boston & Albany railroad.

TWO BOYS CONFESS SHOOTING

Two Cambridge boys, one seven and the other 12, confessed today, according to police, to shooting George Santora, 34, in Austin street, Cambridge.

Police said they had been identified at Cambridge City Hospital by their victim, near death with a bullet through the abdomen.

They were taken into custody by detectives after 12 boys had been questioned.

Santora, a candymaker, was shot as he returned to his home with baggage after effecting a reconciliation with his wife.

One boy told police he saw two boys rundown Washington street about the time of the shooting. They warned him they were being followed by a boy "with a real revolver."

The story of the shooting proved confusing, even to Judge Arthur P. Stone, who heard the boys' stories in East Cambridge District court.

Judge Stone ordered them released in custody of their parents until the Saturday session of Juvenile court. Their appearance was behind closed doors.

Still Wait 2d Twin, Other Born Feb. 15

JASPER, Ind., March 7 (AP)—They are still waiting today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scherle for the twin to William Joseph Scherle, born February 15.

Mrs. Scherle is still 23 days from the record for delayed birth of a twin. The record, according to Dr. Morris Fishbein of Chicago, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, is 44 days.

MARY CURRIE, WHO WOULDN'T GIVE UP
Among Other Things, She Can Play Piano

'Stone Girl's' Victory Over Death Menace Baffling to Science

EXCLUSIVE

Brave little Mary Currie, 12-year-old Roxbury youngster, slowly is winning an unbelievable battle against death—one which medical science never has recorded before.

And while learned doctors marvel, and study, Mr. and Mrs. John Currie of Alpine street were joyful today in the thought that Mary, in another year, may be as normal as any of their other six children.

For Mary is a little girl whose body slowly was turning to stone.

Four years ago, she was a normal youngster, who had been promoted to the fourth grade of St. Joseph's Parochial School. And she liked school.

But soon she began to complain of pains in her legs. Her mother thought she was only tired; things got worse and soon Mary found she couldn't walk upstairs.

FEARED PARALYSIS

"I was really frightened," says Mrs. Currie. "There was a lot of infantile paralysis about, and I thought it might be that. I took her to a hospital.

"Then began the most terrible year of my life. Mary continued to sink; and there was noth.ng to be done."

Mary was a victim of the dread "myositis ossificans progressiva," according to Dr. Alex McWilliams, head of the out-patient department at the Massachusetts Osteopathic Hospital.

This rare disease is caused, physicians say, by a nutritional disturbance of the system resulting from glandular trouble, and causes an upset of the chemical deposit of the body which results in making muscles progressively turn to hard stone.

NO PREVIOUS CURE

There is no record of a previous cure.

"Finally, we took her home. There was nothing to be done, though the hospital had used every resource known to man," Mrs. Currie explained.

"We brought her home to die.

"One day Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Joseph Smith, a neighbor, passed and suggested I try the Osteopathic Hospital."

There, Drs. Kenneth Zwicker and Raymond Boyd set about "mobilizing the spine," which had been immobile, by manipulative work, to normalize nerve and blood supply.

So much did she improve that now the girl who was once brought home to die is moving about her home, able to study, play the piano and crochet. She even rides a tricycle!

Browning Girl Loses Bid for Daddy's Million

ALBANY, N. Y., March 7 (AP)—Marjorie Browning, 24, of New Rochelle, N. Y., lost her fight today for a $1,000,000 share of the estate of the late Edward (Daddy) Browning.

Marjorie Browning

The court of appeals affirmed an appellate division order ruling she was not entitled to a share of the estate despite the contention she was adopted by Mrs. Browning in April, 1918, at the request of the late Mr. Browning.

Miss Browning asserted her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Minnie Herbst, had an oral agreement with the late Mr. Browning he would take her in his family and bestow upon her all the benefits to which an adopted child is entitled.

Attorneys for the estate, in arguments before the court, said Marjorie was adequately compensated at the time she was a member of the family and that she had no status entitling her to bring an action for a portion of the estate.

DAR 'Rebels' in Hub To Join New Group

Ranks of the Daughters of the American Revolution and Sons of the American Revolution have split wide open and a new organization will be formed by the "rebels," it was learned today.

Already a call has been sent out for a meeting March 16 at the home of Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Louisburg square, when a Boston unit in the new order, "The Descendants of the American Revolution," will be formed.

Resignations of D. A. R. and S. A. R. members have been coming in to Boston headquarters even before Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, resigned in protest against barring of Marian Anderson, Negro contralto, from D. A. R. Hall in Washington, D. C.

This was made known today by Mrs. J. Anton De Haas, Belmont, wife of a Harvard business school professor and temporary chairman of the Boston unit of the new organization.

PLAN GROUP HERE

According to Mrs. De Haas, nationally-known sponsors of "The Descendants of the American Revolution" include Sherwood Eddy, Heywood Broun, president of the American Newspaper Guild; Stuart Chase, economist; Dr. Walter B. Cannon, physiology professor at Harvard; Bruce Bliven, writer; Stark Young, novelist, and the Rt. Rev. Robert L. Paddock.

Margaret Hatfield, national chairman, will be here from New York on March 16 and will address the Boston meeting.

On the national advisory board for the "Descendants" are New York Magistrate Dorothy Kenyon, Dr. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, New York; Dorothy Van Doren, author, and Katharine Devereux Blakee, member of the national board of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Others on the board are Mary Hillyer, executive secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy; Freda Kirchwey, editor of The Nation, and Mary K. Simkhovitch, director of New York's Greenwich House.

HAVE 10-POINT PROGRAM

The new organization, according to a printed circular sent out from national headquarters in New York, has a 10-point program, as follows:

To make the ideals of their ancestors a living force today.

To affirm the Bill of Rights.

To further the principles of democracy in the political, social and economic life of America.

To oppose prejudice and discrimination toward any group because of race, creed, political belief or economic affiliation.

To combat the activities of extra-legal bodies who set them-

DR. MANLEY'S WIFE FLIES HERE, BLOCKS HIS DIVORCE ORDER

Completing a surprise flight from her present home in Great Neck, L. I., Mrs. Theodora Manley today successfully halted issuance of a final divorce decree to her husband, Dr. Frederick N. Manley, prominent Quincy physician.

Dr. Manley was granted a decree nisi last September 7 by Judge Joseph R. McCoole in Dedham Probate Court. He had charged cruel and abusive treatment. Mrs. Manley did not contest at that time.

Through her attorney, J. Paul Keefe, Mrs. Manley filed a motion in Dedham probate court objecting to issuance of the final decree. According to probate registry officials this motion, until objections are heard by the court, sets aside issuance of the final decree.

CITES STIPULATIONS

Citing stipulations that she, her husband and their respective attorneys allegedly agreed to before divorce action actually began Mrs. Manley claimed in her motion:

". . . my husband has wilfully and designedly failed to fulfil and perform. Furthermore since July 13, 1938, until the present, my husband has not been faithful to his marriage vows."

According to probate records Mrs. Manley agreed to permit Dr. Manley to have custody of their three-year-old daughter, Nancy Elizabeth, until the decree became absolute.

PAYMENTS DETAILED

The records also state that Dr. Manley agreed to pay his wife a total of $500, four days after the agreement was signed and to pay her $2400 in $200 monthly payments until August 1 of this year. The payments were to have begun August 1, 1938.

After August 1 of this year, Dr. Manley, according to the stipulations, will pay his wife $2100 yearly in $175 monthly payments.

According to Mrs. Manley's latest action the conditions of this agreement have not been met.

Dr. Manley's decree would have been final today.

Admits Smothering Her 'Nuisance Baby'

MAHANOY CITY, Penn., March 7 (AP)—A 32-year-old mother, quoted by state police as saying she smothered her three-year-old son because he "cried too much," was held on a murder charge today in Pennsylvania's second baby-slaying in a week.

State Police Corporal C. D. Boyle testified at a hearing that Mrs. Gus Edinger related she clamped her hand over the baby's nose and mouth Saturday as he lay in bed with her and another child.

Dr. W. R. Glenney said an autopsy showed the child was asphyxiated.

Boyle quoted Mrs. Edinger as saying the baby disturbed her three other children with his crying and was "a nuisance." The mother, wife of a WPA worker, pleaded innocent to the murder charge and was lodged in jail.

Lewis D. Buono, chief of Schuylkill County detectives, said that after smothering the baby, Mrs. Edinger summoned her husband from sleep in another room, and told him she had awakened to find the child dead. The father called a physician.

At first the child's death was attributed to natural causes. Later, Detective Buono said, an investigation was started at the instigation of the Edingers' neighbors.

N.E. FLEET 'GAMES' WIDENED BY NAVY

New England's chance of seeing a substantial part of Uncle Sam's fighting fleet in action was improved today as the Navy Department officials at Washington listed at least 15 warships and 200 airplanes for participation in war games here, April 17 to 22.

Acting on a request made by the Boston Evening American, Senator Walsh, chairman of the Senate committee on naval affairs, was using his influence today to insure a good showing by the fleet in Massachusetts waters.

The list of vessels already assigned here to "defend" New England against a mythical enemy includes two battleships, one light cruiser, three destroyers, six submarines and three seaplane tenders.

Army units, including coast artillery, anti-aircraft, national guard and regular army air forces, and headquarters and intelligence personnel will collaborate with the navy in repelling threatened "invasion" of this strategically vital industrial area.

The defense problem to be worked out here was originally scheduled for Culebra island, in the Caribbean.

That was abandoned in favor of New England, partly on account of well-organized army units here, partly because of influence exerted by Senator Walsh and the Boston Evening American.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses every-day affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

Garage Worker Held in Death

Charged with manslaughter and five counts of alleged auto law violation in the "hit-and-run" death of a widowed Allston mother of four, John C. Hargrove, Commonwealth avenue garage attendant, was held in $5000 today in Brighton court.

Police said a car he was delivering struck and instantly killed Mrs. Pearl Lambert, 48, of Corey road, Allston.

Also in court were Philip J. Jackson, night manager of the garage, and William Ziskend, owner of the death-auto.

Jackson was fined $200 on eight counts of alleged failure to comply with the law requiring garages to keep records of stored car movements and $20 for having no auto license.

Ziskend, claiming a Miami residence, was held until March 28 on four auto law charges.

The case of Hargrove was also continued to March 28.

CHARGES CRUELTY—Vivacious Carol Landis, blonde screen actress, is seeking divorce from Irving Wheeler, writer, on cruelty charge. "We separated after living together only 25 days in 1934," she said.

CLEVELAND, March 7 (AP)—An unusual squeak in his automobile sent John D. Weidman to a mechanic. The latter solved the problem in a jiffy, removing eight baby rats from a nest among the sparkplugs.

Orders Hotel Probe Following Vice Raid

Probe of conditions in Boston hotels suspected of violating provisions of their licenses was ordered today by the Boston licensing board as a result of an early morning police raid on the Brigham Hotel, Washington street.

BARE PLOT TO WRECK B-M FLIER

An attempt to wreck a crack flyer of the Boston & Maine Railroad at Hooksett, N. H., was revealed today by Police Chief John F. Clugh and railroad police, who said a pile of iron was found on the rails during the night.

According to Chief Clugh, iron "fish plates" were placed lengthwise on the northbound rail, over which the "Cannonball," Montreal mail train, was due.

The engineer of the southbound "Alouette" discovered the iron when he passed the spot not long before the "Cannonball" was due. It was reported at the next station.

Chief Clugh said he believed the iron was placed on the rails by some boy. He began search for a boy seen in the vicinity where the "fish plates" were found.

Gable's Wife Asks Divorce Decree Today

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 7 (AP)—Clark Gable's second wife, Maria, went before a Nevada judge today to ask a divorce from the film idol of millions of women.

Minus the presence of Gable, busy in a Hollywood movie, the closed hearing was set for this afternoon in the chambers of Judge William E. Orr.

Married to the actor at Santa Ana, Cal., in 1931, when he was 30 and she 41, Mrs. Gable charged in her complaint that he deserted her in 1935.

Gable, who has settled approximately $286,000 on his wife since their estrangement, filed a written appearance and waiver by mail yesterday.

Beyond her own testimony, Mrs. Gable needed only the statements of two witnesses that she had been in continuous residence in the frontier town of Las Vegas for the past six weeks.

Gable, reported by friends as planning to wed Screen Comedienne Carole Lombard this month, was represented by no counsel.

Gable's first wife was Josephine Dillen, now a Hollywood dramatic coach.

Welfare Fuel 'Gyp' Is Probed

A probe by three city departments into alleged short-quantity fuel deliveries to welfare recipients was ordered today by Mayor Tobin.

He directed that amounts and quality of coal furnished persons on the welfare rolls be immediately and thoroughly checked by officials of supply, weights and measures and welfare departments.

"If it's true needy families have been given short-weight and poor quality fuel, those guilty will be punished to the full extent of the law," the mayor promised.

His action today in ordering the three-way probe followed charges made before the city council by Councilor Perlie Dyar Chase of Back Bay.

3-in-Bed Wife Wins Divorce

SALEM, March 7—Judge John V. Phelan today signed petitions awarding decrees to Mrs. Virginia Allen Maynes of Boston, who described as a three-in-a-bed marital life, and to Mrs. Charlotte Norris of Lynn, who testified she was "a poker widow."

Mrs. Maynes said her husband, Jermyn Maynes, not only made her launder the uniform of his girl friend, but permitted her to sleep with them.

Mrs. Norris said her husband, Clayton Norris, played poker all the time, noticing her only enough to order sandwiches for his poker-playing friends.

Chicago Business Hails Hearst Plea

CHICAGO, March 7—Business and industrial leaders joined today in lauding the radio remarks of William Randolph Hearst in his "Plea for Prosperity."

Complete agreement came from all that industry has been crushed by excessive taxes, and that the American market must inevitably succumb to foreign competition unless immediate and drastic remedial steps are taken by the administration.

From Kenneth S. Templeton, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, came the comment:

"I think Mr. Hearst is 100 per cent correct. We can't possibly expect business to take the risks which are necessary to do business, if the entrepreneur knows he has to turn back from 30 to 40 per cent of his profit in taxes."

Reviewing the ideas of relieving the burden of industry and the burden of 10,000,000 unemployed living off the work of others, Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago & North Western Railroad, said tersely:

"Mr. Hearst's remarks are an example of sound philosophy—as sound as it can be. It is something deserving of action."

Kenneth L. Smith, executive head of the Chicago Stock Exchange, declared:

"There is no doubt that Mr. Hearst is absolutely right.

"We need, as Mr. Hearst has pointed out, a change in the attitude of the administration—a change from pure policing to actual constructive effort."

BUDD COMMENTS

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, declared:

"Unquestionably, the way to get business going is to put men back on private payrolls. I am utterly opposed to government interference and management of business. Business is anxious to go ahead, and the thing to do is let it. In other words, let's give business a chance."

Ex-Teachers Vindicated At Polls

ISABELLE HALLIN, RIGHT, CONGRATULATES MOTHER

Long deferred but sweet vindication today was the reward of ousted school teachers in Saugus and Carver, as final election returns showed defeat of school committee members who brought about their banishment.

Champions of both teachers found victory at the polls more than a year after the girls were "fired."

One of the teachers is blonde Isabelle Hallin, whose mother, Mrs. Annie L. Hallin, led the ticket in the fight for school committee in Saugus.

She ran on the sole plea for vindication of her pretty daughter, dismissed on the grounds she was too modern.

Mrs. Hallin polled 2379 votes. Another candidate favorable to the ousted teacher, William S. Braid ran second and won election with 2155 votes.

Defeated was Miss Maria E. Smith, long-time member of the board, who voted against Miss Hallin's re-instatement.

In Carver, the fate of another pretty blonde was settled in favor of Miss Florence Kaski. Voters elected Winston B. Leach, who openly espoused her cause and promised to vote for reinstatement.

Rich Harvard Grad Hotel Suicide Here

Suicide of a wealthy guest yesterday in Hotel Statler was revealed today by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.

The victim, Charles Frothingham Leland, 71, Harvard graduate, was found in a closet on the 10th floor with a bullet lodged in his brain.

Leland, who once lived on Main street, Southboro, and in Tucson, Ariz., registered at the hotel with a traveling companion, George L. Meade.

No report was made to police by hotel authorities after Meade found the body yesterday morning. Hotel authorities called on the medical examiner directly.

A note was found near the body, but Medical Examiner Leary would not reveal the contents. He stated, however, that "mental illness was undoubtedly the motive" and that the deceased had once been treated at a mental institution.

Meade said he had left his employer Sunday night about 8 p. m. and discovered the body when he called Monday at 9:45 a. m. He said they had just arrived north after a lengthy stay in the southland.

Leland was graduated from Harvard College in 1890 and from Harvard Law School three years later. He kept a large farm in Southboro for many years and visited relatives in Arizona frequently.

Friends in Boston today said he retired from manufacturing woolen goods several years ago, and that during the Spanish American War he was a rough rider with Theodore Roosevelt in Cuba.

PEG MALEON GETS POINTERS ON HOW TO GUARD BEAUTY

A woman who neglects her beauty is like a man who squanders his assets . . .

Broken homes and empty, wasted lives lie in the wake of women who become careless, through a false sense of security, perhaps, and who "lose their looks" without doing anything to prevent it.

And so, building a career for Peg Maleon, Boston's own Galatea, chosen from among thousands of working girls to show beyond doubt what improvement is possible, is being taught to guard her beauty as one of her most precious possessions . . .

By GEORGE W. CLARKE

They call her "Skippy," and she's not much bigger than a minute—and is twice as pretty.

All day long she scurries around in a short-skirted, maroon-colored gym suit . . . Actually, her name is Eleanor Leary, and she is in charge of the gymnasium of the Posse-Nissen system in Coleman's Tremont street store.

And to her was brought Peg Maleon—Muriel Collins, 21-year-old checker from Schrafft's—as a part of the campaign of reconstruction in which she is a principal so that all Boston girls may learn what to do, and how to do it, to make themselves more lovely, more charming, more cultivated.

All according to the plan of the George Bernard Shaw play, "Pygmalion," which has been turned into a movie which opens Thursday at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters . . .

SKIPPY TAKES OVER

Quickly the plan was outlined to Miss Tori, in charge of the department, and "Skippy" was called into action.

In a room filled with all sorts of weird apparatus—bicycles whose wheels go around but don't move, mechanical horses and vibrators—Peg Maleon was told to lie down on a large, black, stuffed mat.

"And rise to a sitting position," said "Skippy." "No, no—don't touch your hands to the mat—come up under your own power. Now bend as far forward as you can? Touch your toes, that's it."

And she explained that the exercise is basic to strengthen the abdomen, to make possible all the exercises to follow.

TAUGHT HOW TO WALK

She taught her then to hold high her diaphragm and to walk like an empress, stepping on eggs.

"Wall, from the hips alone," she was told. "Hold your head high, your shoulders back. Walk as if you had a book to balance. Here is a book—try it again."

Then she did walk like a queen.

Miss Tori discussed life, love and women's affairs while Muriel rested.

"We feel sometimes," she said, "that ours is a pretty high destiny. I don't know how many homes we have saved, how many women we have made happy . . . It is so easy to become careless and once one's beauty begins to fade, it is so difficult to save. If women would only do some of the things they must do to preserve themselves."

Then came a hair-do by Antoine D'Orlando, the system's hairdresser, and Muriel was whisked away for another step in her career—this time to the Leland Powers School of Dramatic Art in a lovely colonial building close to the Fenway.

GETS VOICE TEST

Here her voice was tested by Haven Powers, himself, head of the school, and the son of its founder, while Mr. Ulrich, the school's drama director, and Mr. Anderson took notes on her capabilities.

They liked her very much, and told her so.

Then to the School of Applied Arts, on Boylston street, a charm school, to learn poise.

And today is shopping day, with stops scheduled at the J. J. Fox Co., for an outfit, Vera Bruno et Soeur, for hats, Wilbar's on Tremont street, for shoes, and dozens of other places for everything from head to foot . . .

Peg Maleon is rapidly becoming a very great lady, indeed . . .

Follow Peg Maleon on her shopping trip in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

PAPAL BLESSING GIVEN U. S.

VATICAN CITY, March 7—Pope Pius XII today gave his benediction to the people of the United States in audiences with William Cardinal OConnell and George Cardinal Mundelein.

Cardinal O'Connell and Cardinal Mundelein were received by the new Pontiff in separate private audiences in the papal apartments.

Five other prelates also were received in the pontifical palace.

At the conclusion of the interview, the Pope invited Cardinal O'Connell's party to enter his study.

Bostonians who were included in the group were Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Splaine, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Brookline; Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jeremiah Minihan, secretary to the cardinal; the cardinal's nephew, Joseph E. O'Connell of Brookline, and nephews-in-law, Dr. John C. Downing and Judge Paul G. Kirk.

The Pontiff also received three Italian princes of the church, Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Vincenzo Cardinal Le Puma and Giovanni Cardinal Mercati.

McGlue Tax Fraud Plea Is 'Not Guilty'

In a crowded federal court today, Charles H. McGlue, former chairman of the Democratic State Committee, pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with failure to file an income tax return for 1935.

The case was continued for trial with a date to be set later.

Arraignment of McGlue, who is alleged to have had an approximate income of $35,000 for that year, marks the first in a series of similar proceedings that will result, according to federal officials, from a long investigation of tax delinquents.

McGlue was represented by Attorney Matthew L. McGrath.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Henry M. Leen, who appeared for the government, told Judge Elisha H. Brewster that he believed bail of $1000 would be sufficient, as McGlue has been a practicing attorney for 26 years.

Other indictments are expected to follow swiftly on the heels of McGlue's, thanks to a flood of letters, many of them anonymous, accusing prominent men.

These complaints have been sifted for two years by the intelligence unit of the Treasury Department, and evidence will be presented before the federal grand jury Thursday or Friday.

A professional man suspected of defrauding the government of $100,000 between 1932 and 1938 is likely to be the first, it was said.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Leen also means to press charges against "a prominent contractor with political backing," at least a dozen politicians

HID WAR BOMBS IN BANK 21 YEARS

CHICAGO, March 7 (AP)—The weight of a fearful secret he kept for 21 years was lifted from Reinhold Faust today when he announced in felony court a deep love for his adopted country against whose peace he plotted in the World War days.

Faust, an immigrant from Germany in 1880, was seized Saturday after four home-made bombs were found in a safe deposit box he had rented since November, 1917. Charges of storing explosives in a business district were not pressed after Faust told his story to Judge Hartigan.

Now 74 and changed of heart, Faust admitted his original intention was to place the bombs at patriotic meetings to demonstrate against the United States' war on Germany.

BOMB IN THEATER

Morris Meyers, assistant state's attorney, quoted shim as saying he had never meant to harm anyone, and in the passing years his attitude toward life and his new country changed.

The gaunt old man himself cleared up the mystery in an interview. He admitted—for the first time, he said—that it was he who placed a phosphorescent bomb in the Auditorium Theater on November 17, 1917, as a brilliant audience attended the opera.

"At that time I was dissatisfied with the world and with my lot. Then there was the rich man-poor man question, but the war changed things," he said.

A fireman in the theater seized the sputtering bomb and jerked out the fuse.

$100,000 BOMB PLOT

His strange story was taken up in court by Meyers, who said the brooding Faust, unhappy in his new country, fashioned several bombs, rented the storage box, placed four bombs in it, and attempted to extort $100,000 from a banker by threatening to bomb the bank.

Seized and sentenced to Joliet Penitentiary, Faust served 14 months, but in the interim had disposed of the key to the lock box. On his release in 1919, fearful of having the box drilled open, he decided to pay the $10 annual rental fee until he died.

But recently the safety deposit company moved the box was opened and the bombs discovered.

Rites Tomorrow for F. W. Stearns

Funeral services for Frank W. Stearns, "discoverer" and life-long friend of Calvin Coolidge, will be held from St. Cecilia's Church, Back Bay, tomorrow morning, with burial in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, it was announced today.

Arrangements for the funeral were made today by Congressman Foster W. Stearns of New Hampshire, son of the deceased.

Mr. Stearns, chairman of the board of the R. H. Stearns Company, died yesterday at his home in Fairfield street, Back Bay. He was 82.

From 1914 until Coolidge retired from the White House, Stearns was reckoned his closest friend and most trusted adviser, but throughout the long and intimate association the President's mentor neither sought nor received political honor from Coolidge.

In addition to his son, Foster, he is survived by his widow, the former Emily W. Giese of Wellesley, and Mrs. Louisa Prescott of Grafton.

The deceased was born in Boston of Mayflower stock on Nov. 8, 1856, and was graduated from Amherst College in 1878.

AFL and CIO Sign Truce; Peace Near

A labor truce of national importance was signed today by leaders of rival AFL and CIO forces, after an all-night conference in the Parker House, called at the request of Governor Saltonstall when the dispute threatened a trucking tie-up.

Strikes and embargo moves planned for today were called off by the agreement, which led the way to eventual peace among all labor unions in the state, regardless of affiliation.

The truce was hailed as especially significant because it was signed on the eve of a national conference in Washington, called by President Roosevelt to settle labor conflict.

Commissioner James T. Moriarty of labor and industries presided at the conference. Kenneth I. Taylor, secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, outlined the following agreement:

"The Congress of Industrial Organizations has withdrawn its pickets from the United Markets stores, and, accordingly, the AFL has lifted the so-called existing embargo."

Terms of the truce were read as follows:

"CIO retail clerks will withdraw from the United Markets.

"AFL retail clerks will agree to reinstatement of all former employes who have been on strike.

"Both parties agree to meet within 10 days to discuss and adjust the cases of teamsters, longshoremen at the sugar plants affected, cases of firemen and oilers, and all other mutual problems.

"The present embargo will be lifted."

F. D. OPENS AFL-CIO PARLEY

WASHINGTON, March 7 (INS)—President Roosevelt today brought the full weight of public opinion behind his move for labor peace as he prepared to launch the momentous peace conferences between the rival American Federation of Labor and Congress for Industrial Organization in the White House this afternoon.

After greeting the three-man committees from the warring labor camps in his executive offices at 2:30 p. m., the President was to tell them that they should negotiate a peace—first, for the general welfare of the country, and, secondly, for the general good of organized labor.

PRESIDENT INSISTENT

The President was insistent that the AFL and CIO negotiate a "peace with honor," and he hoped to accomplish it by promoting a feeling of friendship among the negotiators, and promising them full co-operation of government departments, rather than holding any possible threats over them.

The CIO committee consists of John L. Lewis, head of the CIO; Philip Murray, a Mine Workers Union executive, and Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

The AFL committee is composed of Matthew Woll of the Photo Engravers Union, Harry Bates of the Bricklayers Union and Thomas Rickert of the United Garment Workers, all AFL vice-presidents.

4 MAJOR OBSTACLES

Impartial labor observers were pessimistic over outcome of the present peace efforts. Optimism was the byword at the Department of Labor and in administration circles.

At least four major obstacles loomed. They were (1) the place of Lewis and other high CIO officials in any new labor setup; (2) industrial unionism of the CIO as compared with Federation craft unionism; (3) proposed labor act amendment, which the A. F. of L. advocates and the CIO opposes, and (4) the future of labor's Non-Partisan League, the CIO's political organization.

"You know Negrin is in France."

(The former premier fled by air to Toulouse yesterday and reached Paris today.)

General Segismundo Casado, who directed the coup which ousted Negrin and who became Miaja's defense minister, said in another broadcast that Communists, "desperate because of recent (political) failures, deceived several battalions and plunged them into a criminal adventure."

Casado added that the hope of the Communists had been to "complete a daring coup at a time when many Communist leaders," including Dolores Ibarruri, famed as "La Pasionaria," had fled to Oran, Algeria, without saying good-by to the Negrin cabinet.

Charge Newton Vets Railroaded to Asylum

In a startling arraignment of soldiers' relief conditions in Newton, Alderman Frank T. McCabe charged today that "stooges" of Mayor Edwin O. Childs have railroaded some needy veterans into hospitals as mentally unbalanced.

The alderman, at the meeting which lasted into the early hours, charged that the "mayor's Stooge No. 3A" moved in with the three motherless daughters of one such veteran, that two women were hired as "housekeeper and assistant" and that "Stooge No. 3 was a frequent visitor."

USED RELIEF FUND

Money from the Newton soldiers' relief department, the alderman charged, defrayed expenses of this setup while the ailing ex-soldier father was under treatment at the Chelsea Soldiers' Home.

Mayor Childs

Officials at the Soldiers' Home, the alderman said, certified the soldier as sane, despite the assertion of the "Mayor's Stooge No. 3A," who had taken the veteran to the hospital.

Alderman McCabe said that last Thanksgiving week the Soldiers' Relief Department authorized payment of $29 to the veteran's family but that on the day before Thanksgiving, the daughters were given only $5 and were told to go to relatives.

The other $24 went to the "housekeeper and assistant," according to the alderman.

SAYS CASE TYPICAL

"I have purposely refrained from telling all that has taken place in this home," said McCabe, "but I hope I have given enough to demonstrate how the taxpayer has to pay for the mayor's stooges in this department."

He cited this individual case, he said, as "a typical case."

The director of soldiers' relief, the alderman declared "does a humane job and his integrity, I believe, is unimpeachable."

"However," said the alderman, "he has had inflicted upon him as an investigator in his department this man, who also is a recipient of soldiers' relief, and is so close to the mayor that he refers to him as Ned and boasts that as long as Ned is mayor he can run the department as he pleases."

Women Rescue Human Torch

Edward Herman, 61, of Walnut street, Watertown, was saved from death today by his wife and a woman neighbor who beat out flames that left him critically burned.

Herman ran screaming from the garage of his home as a blowtorch ignited his clothing.

His wife, Florence, and Mrs. Charles Armstrong went to his aid as he rolled on the ground.

Police took him to Cambridge Hospital.

Britain Sees Trouble For King on U.S. Trip

LONDON, March 7 (AP)—Britain's growing fears that the king and queen might encounter some unpleasantness on their visit to the United States next May broke into vivid expression today as the Daily Express featured the "savage onslaught" which it asserts is being staged against the royal couple in America.

Whence this onslaught comes, what individuals, or interests, or factions are opposing the trip of George and Elizabeth was not made clear, but the Express sounded the blunt warning that if anything goes amiss when their majesties get abroad [illegible] was "the blame for it."

The Express said United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy "more than any other man" was responsible for the invitation to the King and Queen and that Kennedy was [illegible] be a success.

"Americans who oppose the visit say we are sending our king and queen to call on them cap in hand; that the whole affair is a begging expedition, an attempt to pull the Americans into Europe," the Daily Express said.

Gandhi Wins, Ends 4-Day Fast

RAJKOT, India, March 7 (AP)—Wizened, 69-year-old Mohandas K. Gandhi this afternoon ended a fast of 94 hours and 45 minutes to win political reform. He broke it with a sweet orange juice.

The British viceroy of India later vetoed a Gandhi dispute with the ruler of Rajkot, 20-year-old Thakore Saheb Shri Dharmendrasinhji.

Settlement of the dispute—Gandhi sought more democratic forms of government—was regarded as a heavy significant victory for the revered leader.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

The next few months will Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has ahead of him is work, work, work. So if he is carrying the torch for Zorina, I should doubt he won't have time to give his love life a thought.

The latest to finish "The Sun Never Sets" for Universal is Barbara Lamont, so I guess the lead in "Heart of the Sun" Frank Lloyd's next, Doug, Jr. couldn't be bothered over the chance to play with Frank and he says that how are Lee has promised him he will have a scene or two in "The Sun Never Sets" so he can be free to play in Frank's story.

George Brent who has made love to Bette Davis in so many pictures lately and Brenda Lane who has been Jeffrey Lynn's movie sweetheart so many times get a change of partners. Warners think too much teaming is bad, and so George and Priscilla will be the love birds when "Episode" goes into production.

Seems only yesterday that I was talking to Jack Warner and he told me about having this foreign-made picture but actually it was a good two years ago. Probably the reason it was never made was because it dealt with pre-war Austria which has been such a hotbed of censorship but now that Germany, Austria and Italy are such poor customers it doesn't matter.

'Peg Maleon' Debut at State

Miss Muriel Collins of Dorchester who has been chosen Listeners 'Peg Maleon' by Stanley Woodward noted New England artist, is to be given a reception Thursday night in the Audition Room of Loew's State Theater.

Inspired by the theme of Bernard Shaw's satirical play, 'Pygmalion,' which reveals the exciting story of how a professor of phonetics picked a flower girl from the streets of London and on a wager trained her into a duchess within 90 days, the Boston American persuaded Mr. Woodward to pose a Boston girl.

State and city officials, film and theater executives, friends and movie fans will be present to meet her and to view 'Pygmalion,' which opens at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters Thursday.

Colorful Show At Old Howard

Between Lillian Dixon, "red-headed burlesque queen," and Barbara Chicago's copper-haired burlesque beauty, the Old Howard's show this week manages to be a definitely colorful, lively production. It is "City Club Burlesquers" and its cast of 60 includes some of the Hub's favorite comedians, dancers and specialty acts.

On the screen are "The Texans" with Joan Bennett, Randolph Scott and May Robson and "Castaway at the Bar," with William Boyd. Old Howard shows start daily at 12 noon, 2:30 and 8:20.

Comedy for Hepburn

Katharine Hepburn, in a play written especially for her by Philip Barry, will return to the Colonial stage under Theater Guild auspices for a two-week engagement beginning next Monday evening.

The play is "The Philadelphia Story," a comedy laid in the charming, ancestral home of the Seth Lords just outside of Philadelphia. Miss Hepburn plays Tracy Lord, elder daughter, who, assisted by the other Lords, is preparing for her second marriage scheduled for the following day.

Through the co-operation of Tracy's brother, a reporter and a girl reporter, representing a national publication, are installed as guests in the Lord home and will cover it from the society angle.

Around this group of characters Barry has written a comedy which he believes is more amusing and exciting than any of his previous successful plays.

Garfield Stars

John Garfield and the "Dead End" kids, in "They Made Me a Criminal," and John Barrymore, in "The Great Man Votes," are at the Washington Street Olympia through Thursday.

RUTH CHATTERTON TOWERS ABOVE NEW PLAY AT WILBUR

Warm Greeting For Favorite

By PEGGY DOYLE

The old adage about absence making the heart grow fonder holds true in Ruth Chatterton's case. A fugitive from the boards for 10 years, this excellent stage and screen star returned to her first love last night at the Wilbur in "West of Broadway." The repeated outbursts of appreciation have been as satisfying as they were startling to a seasoned stage-conditioned expatriate from the "legit" these many years.

The occasion might have been even a happier one for her had Marguerite Roberts' new comedy been a worthier match for Miss Chatterton's talent and charm.

Story of a celebrated acting couple who choose to retire to an Iowa farm at the peak of their careers and then change their minds after a three-month trial of whistle-stop existence, "West of Broadway" comes along on gag lines to an interminable finish. Hard-used by characters who have been provided with glib and commercial cover lines, but not always a third dimension, even Miss Chatterton's unfaltering performance can't pay the losers pay.

• • •

Walter Abel, another Broadway export who has been exploring hitherto unsuspected possibilities of homey screen roles in support of Miss Chatterton, is also her husband on the "Trail" stage, without the shadow of a doubt. It has a look about that soon leads to an unexploding gerund somewhere under the Merriam Hanson in his overalls and farm hand denim. Anne Cornell turns out to be a fine and even more attractive prospect of being a farmhand's sweetheart and not a husband's.

As the farmer's daughter Betty Mary Law, capably proved by youth, Jeanne Dante finds him completely enchanting, or is Merrimanse Mr. Right? A state of affairs which Cedric Lees has time to commiserate to the lady whom all the world has believed has been his wife for the past 20 years.

The reception is prompted by large directions of applause initialed by the back to be taken during part one "sign-on" night. The applause does Mr. Abel a lot of good becoming him up so that he forgets his static postulating and does his best acting of the evening. Miss Chatterton is splendid, especially in her drunken soliloquy.

• • •

Again in the fact breakfast and wedding scenes, that old dish-hill skill of Miss Chatterton's lifts her right upstairs out of the acting company of her less gifted associates.

Will Geer, who appeared earlier in the season in Max Gordon's "Sing Out the News," must be credited with a most convincing portrayal as Sheriff Ralph Law.

It's our guess that Broadway will not find "West of Broadway" any more interesting than it ever was, literally speaking. But let's hope Ruth strikes gold there soon before Hollywood calls her again.

The Life of Christ

CHAPTER TEN

Jesus reveals to the woman of Samaria that He is the promised Messiah.

By COLLIN CLINE

IN THE LOVELY country between Judea and Galilee, Jesus stopped to rest one day about two thousand years before the birth of Jacob.

Tired and thirsty, He remained in the cool shade while His disciples went into nearby Sychar for food.

Now Jacob's well was deep, and as yet no one could draw water from it without a pail and long rope. Consequently, when a woman of Samaria came to fill her pitcher on her head Jesus said to her quietly:

Of course the woman was amazed for the Jews and Samaritans were ancient enemies and not accustomed to speaking to each other.

"How," she asked, "is it that Thou being a Jew, askest drink of me which am a woman of Samaria?"

Jesus replied: "If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith unto thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldst have asked of Him, and He would have given thee living water."

Now the woman thought Him crazy, but she was persistent. "Sir, Thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep; from whence then hast Thou that water?"

Then Jesus explained: "Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

In today's language, He meant that the love of God brings eternal joy, just as much as necessary to the soul as water is to the body.

Here the Jews gave new proof of His great power. He had never before seen the woman. Yet He was able to tell her many things about herself, including the fact that she had had five husbands.

We can imagine the surprise of the disciples when they returned and found the Saviour talking to the woman. Ordinarily Jewish men did not converse on equal terms with women. Neither did they make friends with members of despised races.

But Christ, the Son of God, was above earthly hates and suspicions. He disliked no individual because of his ancestry. He was truly tolerant. And, as though to end the custom that caused women to be regarded as little more than slaves, He selected this Samaritan woman to be the first person to hear from His own lips that He was the promised Messiah.

Today's picture was painted in water color by William Hole, distinguished British artist. It shows the woman of Samaria saying: "I know that the Messiah cometh, which is called Christ; when He is come He will tell us all things," and Jesus answering: "I that speak unto thee am He."

Tomorrow, an inspired masterpiece of art, the work of Domenico Mastroianni of Italy, will depict the miraculous draught of fishes.

Human Side of News -:- by EDWIN C. HILL

ON HIGH GROUND at Golden Gate Park, in San Francisco, her journey's end, rests Amundsen's stout little ship, the Gjoja, which made the first voyage through the long-sought-for Northwest Passage. At the San Francisco World's Fair, on the other side of the peninsula, youth will find many a new stimulus to adventure, perhaps forgetting the old Gjoja.

But I wonder if the age of highly mechanized exploration can offer any real substitute for the romantic lure of such old ships as the Amundsen's and Nansen's Fram, now in a museum in Oslo, the ship that went farther north than any ship had ever gone before.

KNOBBY, weather-beaten Captain Bob Bartlett, is a hold-out against de luxe exploration. Without any ungenerous attitude toward his fellow explorers, Captain Bob now in New York looks upon de luxe exploring somewhat as an old time sagebrush cowman looks on the dude ranchers.

In his tough little schooner, Effie Morrissey, the captain has taken a worse buffeting than Siegfried got in the land of the Ice King. He has been shipwrecked 12 times and four times his ships have been crushed. He likes to fight ice with no holds barred, and he seems to think that going north in an air-conditioned ship, full of machinery and gadgets, is something like packing a horseshoe in your glove.

CAPTAIN BOB BARTLETT
He'll Never Be Reconciled

Like all Brigus, Newfoundland, men, Captain Bob speaks a quaint Elizabethan English.

"I do love the sea as a dog loves its master who cleans it for the discipline of the house," says Captain Bob.

WHEN he was 17, his father, known all along the Labrador and Newfoundland coast as "Uncle Nory," gave him a schooner, and he sailed north to hunt for seals. In 1905, he went north with Peary, but their ship, the Roosevelt, was caught in the ice.

It was not until 1908 that Peary gained the pole. On the last stretch with dog team, it was a Negro named Henson, and not Captain Bob, who shoved on to the pole with Peary.

There was quite an uproar about Captain Bob being left with the ship. "That's all right," he said. "I am a better sailor than Henson, but he is a better dog driver."

Rounding 60, Captain Bob still braves icebergs. He is the happiest ice buccaneer alive. He never will be reconciled to ultra-scientific, luxurious and 99 percent-safe exploring.

Girl About Town -:- by MARJORIE McBRIDE

IT MAY BE a startling sign of the times that one of the latest inventions to be announced here about is an automatic lock picking gun which opens any locked door as quickly and surreptitiously as a key.

But it isn't for the police who evidently have one at headquarters by now. Already on the market, it is said to look like a fountain pen and to open many doors before the owner can explain.

Strangely enough, the lock and the new proof lock were invented by a former policeman.

The lock jack is a thin steel, manipulated by a handle that resembles a revolver. It's a handy gadget for police or constant keyholders, but a dangerous criminal tool as well. So far it hasn't been marketed, and if police have their say it won't be sold wholesale. They have enough trouble as it is!

MARJORIE CARLETON of Newton tells this joke on a fellow scribbler who retired to New Hampshire to write fiction and decided to live on the popular rustic dialect.

"How much board will you charge me for a few weeks while I gather material for my new novel?" she asked a farmer.

"Ten dollars a week, unless ye have to talk dialect. That's $3 extra," the native drawled.

New Faces Needed -:- by HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, March 7—"The people have lost confidence in you Mr. President." That is what Washington gossip about Jack Garner is supposed to have said in the supposedly stormy Cabinet meeting just before the President's Caribbean trip with the Fleet and the Administration's sudden apparent turn to the right.

It may or may not be true that the Vice President said so blunt a thing. I doubt it.

IN THE first place, it doesn't sound like Mr. Garner and, in the second place, it is not true. A majority of people have not lost confidence in Mr. Roosevelt. They continue to idolize him.

It would be perfectly correct to say that private enterprise has so far lost confidence in fair words and promises from this Administration, that it does not believe them. It will not believe them until they are translated into action.

Mr. Roosevelt and business started off together in 1933 in almost perfect harmony and co-operation. It is a well known fact that this harmony was broken through new policies bitterly hostile to business which were peddled to Mr. Roosevelt by new advisers and associates.

VICE-PRESIDENT GARNER
Rebuked Mr. Roosevelt?

They believed that our capitalist and profits system of economy ought to be taken apart, put together again and thereafter operated by politicians rather than by private initiative. Their sincerity in this belief amounts almost to a religion.

Is it possible that in their hearts these zealots have changed their views?

Such an idea is ridiculous. Yet those advisers and associates remain as close and as influential as ever. Their policy proved ruinous alike to the President, to his party, to business and to recovery and yet there they still hold sway.

THAT certainly does not make for confidence in the country. It is perhaps too much to suggest that they all either receive their "Dear Ray" letters or, by some adroitness, be kicked upstairs. They have been faithful friends, and according to their lights, hard working servants.

But if there could somehow be an exodus of them it would do more to promote recovery than any other possible single move.

MacARTHUR EXPLAINS WHY ARMY NEEDS MORE MONEY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 7—While members of Washington's Army bloc awaited Congress' vote on the $499,000,000 Army supply bill, they told of the time Gen. Douglas MacArthur appeared before a Senate committee to testify regarding a plea for increasing Army funds . . . "I'll give you one illustration why more money is necessary for the Army" the General said. "Once, during sham-maneuvers in Hawaii, four soldiers spent all day climbing a hill. When they reached the top, the four soldiers told the guard there 'Surrender — we're four regiments of infantry' . . . 'G'wan, throw your guns away,' returned the guard 'I'm one tank corps.'"

FRIENDS of J. P. Morgan are telling this story: Morgan 'phoned his nephew, Henry, and asked: "Where do you expect to be at 4:15 this afternoon?" . . . "I don't know yet," Henry answered. "Well, asked Morgan "will you be walking along Riverside Drive?" "Yes I might be," was the reply. "Will you be whizzing along Riverside Drive, let's say, at 110th st.?" "Yes," Henry assented. "Why?" "Very well then, Morgan returned. "I will be sailing by on the Corsair. We'll wave at you."

WILLIAM SAROYAN'S neatest book "Peace It's Wonderful," will be published April 1 . . . The following day his first play, "My Heart's in the Highlands," will be presented by the Group Theater although Saroyan isn't quite sure about it . . . "Hope you get a chance to see the play before it closes," he wrote to a New York friend. "To be safe I suggest that you catch the first performance. But to be absolutely safe — see a rehearsal."

CONFIDENTIAL CABLES from Berlin point to March 15 as a most decisive day in the history of Germania . . . Dick Metz who has been a big money winner among the golfers this year, won only $26 in the St Petersburg tournament. He went to a movie after the match, won $50 in a Bingo game—and then contributed the $76 to charity . . . Andre Simon, head of the British Wine and Food Society, is bringing back to England an American dish which he says excels anything British. The dish is smoked turkey.

HOWARD HUGHES IS COMING to Boston . . . He will slip into town quietly and the visit will coincide with Katharine Hepburn's presence in town as did his last one . . . Miss Hepburn broke records for a star in a play without music in Philadelphia last week . . . Her last role here, that of "Jane Eyre," convinced many Bostonians—including this one that Miss Hepburn is an appealing actress . . . Phil Barry has written for her something very special, according to reports, in "The Philadelphia Story."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Grace Perkins (Oursler), the novelist, unleashes a new description of a critic in the Sandalwood Herald . . . She says a critic is a person who goes places and boos things . . . In giving credit for authorship of the new popular song, dedicated to Press-Agent Dorothy Johnson, the column neglected to give part to Roger Magee, who wrote the song ("You're Amazing") with Ned Madison . . . Mr. Magee is the accomplished organist of Symphony.

The "Vincent (Club) 1939 Variety" will be held at John Hancock Hall, March 23, 24 and 25 . . . On St Patrick's Night at the Copley-Plaza Major Hugh A Drum, U. S. A., will be guest speaker at the 202d anniversary of the Charitable Irish Society . . . Early announcements of candidates at the next Boston polling are those of John T. Galvin, B. C. '37, who is a student at Northeastern Law School, and who will run for City Council from Ward 11 and Samuel Golden of Roxbury whose friends say he will declare his candidacy for Boston School Committee.

It seems the FHA "has authorized" according to damning messages from banks holding FHA mortgages a "late charge" of five cents a dollar for each overdue payment . . . One writer interprets this "late charge" as a 5 per cent levy and wonders as to its legality . . . Maybe this note will get them an answer.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

THE VOSE ART GALLERY is housing 20 or 30 more horses this week . . . but don't be disturbed . . . they haven't turned it into a stable . . .

These horses have been selected from our best known and most talented equine artists and are carefully drawn on white artist's board from which they look out at the gallery's visitors . . . yet cannot disturb the dignity of the surroundings with whinnies, neighs, barks or barnyard fragrance . . .

This assemblage of "good guys" is the result of a very unusually little known hobby of talented Julia Barbour . . . She is famous for her painting in Vincent shows . . . not entirely to sell advertising in the program for the same price one time what wouldn't a Broadway producer give for such a combination of talent and business ability . . . and for her a thousand good fellowship . . .

But she has kept her talent for drawing more or less a secret until this one man show . . . She has a remarkable pencil and draws nothing but horses . . .

A picture of the sister Louisa Barbour's Irish Red Quick attracted the most attention yesterday afternoon . . . Quick has been in the news more than most thoroughbreds because he spent a vacation at the summer White House as a guest of the Roosevelts . . .

• • •

Drawings of Police Horses Win Praise

WHEN LOUISA was presented her parent's on a trip to Africa she met Queen Julianna, Roosevelt's cousin . . . which, of course started romantic speculation concerning her and John . . . But Cupid won't bring them together this year' . . . John is now married to the former Anne Clark and Louisa made her debut this past winter . . .

Duke and Dawg of the Boston police department seemed quite at home among the thoroughbreds from blue ribbon stables . . . Bonnie Forbes pinch-pony of Kay Winthrop's hunters Sierra, with the Forbes twins, the George S. Wests' stables and Mr. Henry M. Bates' Lucky Pidgeon, were among those present in vast numbers . . .

Tom Gallagher's Nellie, type of working horse was ably represented by a pair of the Fitzsimmons farm horses and Jessie Barney, Ann . . .

Julie's Friends Praise Her Work

BETTY M'KEAN and her fiance, Bennett Forbes dropped in so they could see the new pony Betty, how she looked in her jumping . . . Betty and Bennett are to be married in July and undoubtedly they now have will have a room decorated in a hunting or polo motif . . . for they bought several of the best examples of Julie's art . . .

Among Julie's many friends who dropped in to admire her work was Rosemary Quinn in a sprigtake dress of navy blue dotted swiss and trimmed with narrow pink piping around the yoke . . . Her pretty hair was covered with a pink veil and she wore a white cape . . .

Mrs. Charles Patterson and her sister, Mrs. S. Higginson Nash, were there, though they were not as surprised as many others for they had seen previously of Julie's hobby . . . Katharine Lane, who is a prospective debutante, was amazed and thrilled at the pictures and congratulating the young artist were Mrs. A. L. Wiggin, Jr. with her son, George, Mrs. George Bemis, Mr. Wm. [illegible] Mr. Leon Brockman of Paris, Marian Lawrence, Arthur Lowell and Isabel Porter, who is enjoying a very successful career as a landscape architect . . .

JUST RETURNED from a Southern holiday and sporting a nice tan to prove it, Nancy Sears attended the opening of Ruth Chatterton's new show at the Wilbur last evening with Vinton Freedley, Jr., son of the noted producer. Miss Sears is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Sears, Chestnut Hill.

Decorations are being directed by Mrs. Thomas Joyce while Mrs. Frederick Koons is in charge of food with assistant Mrs. P. J. Fagan. Mrs. Joseph Sullivan is the seating chairman while the door committee... [illegible] Mrs. D. J. Gormley, Mrs. W. [illegible] Dupont, Mrs. Mary Cronin and Miss Margarete Maguire.

League President Jane M. Keyes heads the reception committee with Mrs. John J. Monahan of Cardinal Hill will serve as toastmistress. Her aides will be Mrs. Louis P. Perrin, Mrs. T. A. Cronin, Mrs. Frank Finn, Mrs. Edward Connors, Miss John J. O'Neil and Mrs. P. J. Mahon.

Others having an active part in planning the event are Mrs. John J. Attridge, Mrs. William Cahill, Mrs. D. J. Casey, Mrs. Clarence J. Dowling, Mrs. Walter F. Farr, Mrs. John Gately, Mrs. F. L. Gorman, Mrs. Henry J. Hourihan, Miss Georgia F. Herlihy, Mrs. Richard J. Hill, Mrs. D. J. Lanigan, Mrs. J. J. Ryan and Mrs. James F. Sullivan.

Club Group To View Art

More than 50 members of the Women's City Club are going on a pilgrimage to Worcester tomorrow, to see the extraordinary Flemish masterpieces on exhibition at the Art Museum there.

Mrs. Roland G. Hopkins, of Chestnut Hill, activities committee chairman, is in charge. Club members have offered their cars to transport the party and they will be guests of Francis H. Taylor, curator of the Worcester Art Museum.

Among those planning to attend are Miss Emma Allen, Mrs. Charles Hammett, Mrs. Harold McKinney, Miss Lucy Swift, Mrs. Gorham Thurber, Mrs. Willoughby Webb, Miss Winifred Williams, Mrs. Charles Underwood, Mrs. Harry Whalen, Mrs. W. B. Pratt and Miss Anna L. Powell.

Premiere, Concert Draw Socialites

Bostonians felt like Broadwayites last evening, for they had two important theatrical affairs to choose between the Lili Boulanger Memorial Concert in Symphony Hall, and the opening of West of Broadway starring Ruth Chatterton, at the Wilbur.

Noted at the musical event were such inveterate concert-goers as Mrs. John Palfrey accompanied by Mrs. Francis W. Bird; Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall and her daughter, Emily, who helped distribute programs to arriving patrons; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taft and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bigelow.

Mrs. George Lincoln Dow, Jr., assisted her sister-in-law, Dorothy Dow, in giving out programs, the former in a simple gray street dress with white pique revers and cuffs, and "Deedee" in a lovely gray lace dinner gown. Mrs. Richard Sears wore a springlike outfit of cerise taffeta with a wrap of the same fabric.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chalifoux were accompanied by daughter Betsy in a little family party at the Wilbur opening. Mrs. Robert Lovett, wearing a small chinchilla cape with her black gown, occupied a front row seat and a festive party of six included Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson and Betty Dunsmore, both of Groton and Boston.

Crimson camellias brightened Mrs. Danielson's simple black dinner gown, and Miss Dunsmore also wore a corsage of camelias with her gown of violet crepe. Others in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Royden Loring, Nancy Sears with Vinton Freedley, Jr., Stuart Reid and Mrs. Samuel Newman.

Notre Dame Frolic April 11

A spring hop is the gay name which Boston Notre Dame graduates have given to their post Lenten frolic Tuesday evening, April 11 at the Hotel Sheraton.

Many delightful points are being made by an energetic committee group headed by Dorothy Norman of Brookline.

Her committee group includes Margaret McCarthy, Mary Donlan, Kathleen Hennessey, Marion Campa, Muriel Kingsley, Mary Burns and Eleanor Sweeney.

Also doing their bit toward making the event a success are Margaret Dolan, Phyllis and Priscilla White, Dorothy and Mary O'Neil, Gertrude McHenry and Agatha Keohane.

Aristos Club Plans Fete

With potted shamrocks for table decorations, and green and white noisemakers and novelties, the Aristos Club supper dance March 17 at the Parker House will be a gay soiree for members of the active organization.

Sally O'Connell of Milton, member of the club's executive board, is busy with all sorts of interesting plans for the frolic to benefit the club's scholarship fund. Serving as her co-chairmen are Marguerite Kelly and Eileen Kiley.

Doing their share by making the night an outstanding one are Charlotte O'Donnell, Carol Murray, Eleanor O'Donnell, Gertrude McManus, Mary Carmody, Genevieve Slattery and Peggy Macpherson.

Others concocting some novelties in the refreshment and entertainment line are Ruth Harrington, Margaret Riley, Anne Mooney, Anna Murphy and Mrs. Frank Murphy.

JUNIOR AID LEAGUE TO HOLD PENNY SALE

One of the outstanding events in the League calendar will be the Junior Aid League of Boston penny sale Thursday evening, March 23 at the Hotel Statler.

Assisting Elizabeth McDermott of Lenox Place, president of the charitable group of league members, including Kay Fitzgerald, Agnes Foley, Louise Cuff and Mary M. Nevins. The League's donation fund for underprivileged children is the beneficiary.

Budget Buys In Spring Suits

By ANNICE BRINK

WE ARE perfectly earnest and sincere when we say to you, via typewriter and the good graces of the composing room, that the past four years have seen a steady rise in the quality of both fabrics and styling for genuine budget fashions.

And who can deny that an excellent tailored bankers stripe suit of worsted at $18.50 is not in that class? Or a more spectator-type ensemble with a complete sheer wool frock beneath a matching cardigan of plaid tweed at $7.95 is not sportswear at its best?

Yes, actually, these are the spring styles which are proving an punch and we contend the chance was a very good one to put it properly.

Beef Hearts Unusually Savory

By MARTHA LEE

Beef heart is a section of the [illegible] properly appreciate. Of course the [illegible] which maybe is why we don't see beef hearts offered in profusion by our butcher.

However, comparatively scarce as it is, beef heart is not expensive. It has the texture of fine grained meat and its flavor is unusually delicate.

Beef heart stuffed and [illegible] to cut with a fork tenderness to a heart any steer can be proud to have produced.

Hearts, when purchased, should be thick and firm, thoroughly cleansed, comparatively free from blood clots, and trimmed free of the fatty grisly top part. Calf, lamb, and pork hearts are more tender than those of beef. Beef hearts however is equally nutritious and a desirable buy.

After washing a beef heart thoroughly and removing any blood vessels and clotted blood, [illegible] cover it with salted water and [illegible] it until it is tender. This will take between 2½ and [illegible]

Or you may [illegible] tender then fill it with [illegible] stuffing and [illegible] until it is a light brown.

The easiest way to [illegible] is to cut it down [illegible] [illegible] and then sew together. A [illegible] pointed heart [illegible] [illegible] sewing.

STUFFED BEEF HEART

4 to 4½ lb. beef heart
4 cups bread cut into cubes
1 teaspoon salt

Threat Writer Wins Leniency

Found guilty of mailing threatening letters to wealthy and socially prominent Robert Treat Paine of Waltham, James Philip Penney, jobless Waltham carpenter, was given a suspended, two-year penitentiary sentence in United States district court today.

Judge Elisha H Brewster placed the defendant on probation for three years.

Asking imprisonment of Penney, Assistant United States Attorney George F. Garrity said the letter Paine demanded $2000 and threatened him with bodily harm unless the money was paid.

Paine is a former candidate for governor and a direct descendant of Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Judge Brewster said he felt Penney's previous record as a citizen ought to be taken into consideration. He was informed that work had been found for Penney and the latter would be able hereafter to support his family.

Girl Soloist To Sing After All---In Chorus

Leona Vanni, who was first granted and later denied a solo part in the Boston schools musical production at Symphony Hall on March 15, is going to sing after all, the school committee announced today.

The board agreed unanimously to adopt a recommendation of Supt. of Schools Arthur Gould, instead of a proposed solo part, a chorus will be substituted and not only Miss Vanni but all the girls who tried for the part and failed will be included, the chorus of voices assuring any possibility of the melody being drowned out by the 75-piece orchestra.

Girl Plays Hookey, Finds $520 in Gold

TOLEDO, Ore., March 7 (AP)—Eleanor Johns, 10, played hookey to rummage through a dump heap.

She found an old canvas belt containing 26 $20 gold pieces. Authorities, unable to find the owner, banked the money for her.

State May Lead Building Boom

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Significant optimism on the outlook for construction this spring is developing among business, financial and industrial leaders . . . Massachusetts, and New England in general, are being pictured as ready to lead the upturn . . .

The chief reason for the belief this state and section will be in the forefront of a building recovery drive is found in the excellent condition of local banks . . . That bankers themselves view spring prospects with pleasure is shown by the comments made by Henry H. Pierce, president of the Merchants Co-operative Bank of Boston . . . In submitting the bank's 227th quarterly statement he takes occasion to point out his expectation of an acceleration in home financing of all kinds . . . That there will be little difficulty in accommodating such borrowing is demonstrated by the Merchants' statement . . . Over $4,000,000 in cash and government securities is available and Mr. Pierce thinks thrift activity is going to expand further in the spring months . . .

Henry H. Pierce

PROFIT SHOWN . . . By Thompson's Spa for 1938 . . . Is further evidence that some enterprises successfully bucked recessionary tides . . . The statement supplied us by Treasurer John W. Stokes reveals a net of $49,999.93 after provision for federal income taxes . . . And in regard to taxes, President Ezra S. Eaton in his report to stockholders calls attention to the burden borne by the company . . . it amounted to $131,199, or $3.83 per share, for 1938 . . . That is on the preferred stock outstanding and includes local state and federal levies . . . Another item of interest in Thompson's showing last year is the big reduction in mortgage indebtedness . . . More than $270,000 was paid off, thus effecting substantial interest charge savings . . . And all this was accomplished despite a dip of 8.7 per cent or $1,861,536 in sales . . .

FOREIGN BUYING . . . The lack of it is causing some qualms among traders and investors . . . Who seem to feel that domestic markets lack substance if orders are not flowing our way from across the seas . . . Especially London, Amsterdam and Paris . . . Sometimes the reasons run deep and far from being bearish are bullish on the outlook . . . The pound is an instance in case . . . London is recovering from the war scare . . . sentiment is strengthening there . . . And naturally the English see their own stock bargains first . . . The Dutch have had their troubles with guilder quotations . . . When straightened out they may look over here . . . But the chances are London's move is coming right now . . . As for Paris the situation is akin to that of London . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . Hahn & Hardart is expected to experience a sizeable increase in sales during the New York World's Fair . . . The company is said to be considering a chain of novelty restaurants . . . And it could do better than competitors by virtue of their "automatic" buying power . . . Earnings are said to be earning at the rate of $1.50 per share . . . For the fiscal year ended January 31 Federated Department Stores may show about $2.25 per share, according to Street gossip . . . Those bullish on Vanadium think molybdenum replacement of it in tools has about reached a peak . . . An increasing amount of vanadium is reported being used by the chemical industry as a catalyst . . . And if steel output averages around 60 per cent this year estimates of $2 per share for Vanadium Corp are thought reasonable . . .

Stocks Score Small Gains in Quiet Dealings

NEW YORK March 7 (AP) — Industrials led the stock market in a moderate recovery shift today with favorites advancing fractions to around a point. A number of highs for the past year again were in evidence.

LASTING REVIVAL GOVERNMENT AIM

By ROBERT A. McGILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 7 (INS) The administration's goal is lasting recovery, but whether the current "appeasement" program toward business will be temporary or permanent "time will tell," Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau told the House coinage committee today.

With members of Congress expressing eagerness to cooperate with the administration but insisting first on a more definite outline of the program, the House group seized upon an opportunity to cross examine Morgenthau when he appeared to testify on proposals to extend President Roosevelt's emergency money powers for another two years.

To the Secretary, a Republican member, Rep. Andresen of Minnesota, put this question:

"Is the current appeasement program a temporary or permanent policy—are we to have a real permanent breathing spell?"

Morgenthau's reply was:

"The only answer to that is, time will tell.

"The whole question of recovering is bigger than either the Democratic or Republican party. We want to make it lasting, not just for today or tomorrow."

Republicans deluged Morgenthau with questions on the "soundness of the dollar, the prospects for returning to the gold standard, and the administration's fiscal policy as a whole. Essence of his replies was:

Gold Standard—"The moment there is a ray of hope, I want to go back. Just as soon as it looks as though a little sanity is returning in the world, I'll be in the front row cheering for return to stable money, but to go back now might mean the repetition of the experience of 1932-33, when the rest of the world devalued and we didn't."

Sound Money—"During the first year after we devaluated there was some apprehension and misunderstanding on the part of business men, but as each year passed over a period of five years, they've come to realize that we have the soundest currency in the world today."

Fiscal Policy—"Confidence and soundness is measured in different ways. The principal way the Treasury has of measuring it is in the marketing of government securities. The demand for these securities today says to me that the people have full confidence in this administration's fiscal policies."

EARNINGS

NEW YORK, March 7 (AP)—Douglas Aircraft Co., today reported net profit of $2,146,391 or $3.76 a share, for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1938. This was almost double the previous 12 months total of $1,081,515, or $1.90 a share. Net sales for the fiscal year were $28,347,474, a new high, and a gain of $7,597,113, or 36 per cent over sales for the preceding 12 months. As of November 30, current assets, including $3,558,093 in cash, totaled $4,737,334 against current liabilities of $2,129,333.

Corn Products Refining Co. reported for 1938 net income of $9,753,609 or $3.17 a common share, compared with $4,100,522, or $2.02 a share for the previous year, on net sales of $53,301,490 for the year including $3,809,872 sales to non-consolidated subsidiary companies.

Schenley Distillers Corp. placed 1938 earnings at $4,030,133, or $2.46 a share on common stock, against $7,328,905 or $5.04 a common share, in 1937. Lester E. Jacobi, president, told stockholders in the annual report that domestic sales in the last quarter of 1938 "showed substantial improvement and . . . this favorable trend has continued in 1939."

Pressed Steel Car Co. and subsidiaries reported a net loss for 1938 of $1,159,778 after charges compared with net profit of $717,649 in 1937, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.05 a share on common stock. Principal plants are at McKees Rocks, Pa. and Hegewisch Ill.

Rayonier, Inc., manufacturers of bleached sulphite pulp for conversion into cellulose products, reported today a consolidated net profit for the quarter ended January 31 of $1,339,900, or $1.27 a common share, compared with $731,695, or 43 cents a share, for the quarter ended Jan. 31, 1938.

A plan to set up a capital surplus against which to charge abandonment of property is being perfected by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, stock holders were informed at the annual meeting.

Chairman Lester Watson also said the directors mean to simplify the capital structure and pay unpaid dividends. He would not go further. All retiring directors were re-elected.

"If the par value of the common stock or of all the stocks were reduced," said the chairman, "it would result in setting up a surplus, in which case the abandoned property item could be charged off. The advantage to stockholders would be that the money now being set aside to amortize that item would become available for the stockholders."

Austen Lake: The Quaintest Man in Baseball

WHEN YOU GET THROUGH WITH THIS, I think you will agree that not all the cuckoos are in trees or cages. Well then, a late issue of a National weekly glorifies the high voltage red-head who bosses the Brooklyn Dodgers. The man is Larry McPhail. And to give you an inkling of how odd he is and how peculiarly fitted to direct the quaintest aggregation of singularities in baseball, he is the man who tried to kidnap the Kaiser after the world war. Honest!

Austen Lake

The story, which he told me recently, is this. McPhail wound up in the war as adjutant of the 114th Field Artillery, under the command of Colonel Luke Lea, who originated the scatter-brained kidnap party at a time when the A. E. F. was looking for goofier things to do while waiting for passage home. So Colonel Lea got together four officers, including himself, and four enlisted men, all from his own outfit, all Tennesseeans and all equally moonstruck. And though the expedition was the most fantastic, brain-scrambled piece of lunacy ever attempted, it failed only when Col. Lea missed his putt on the lip of the cup—right in the Kaiser's own drawing room and within sound of the imperial voice.

[illegible] UNDER THE JOINT LEADERSHIP OF McPhail and Lea [illegible] the [illegible] kidnapers drove a U. S. army car across the [illegible] to Amerongen, Holland. As a matter of fact, McPhail, who was driving, [illegible] the way along the road to the Castle of Count von Bentinck, a fine old chateau surrounded by stone walls and a guarded postern.

Amazingly neither Lea nor McPhail had prepared a plan to get at the Kaiser's person. Neither had given any forethought as to how they would subdue the guard, quell the kicking Kaiser or bundle his precious carcass back to Belgium. Like mischievous little boys about to rob a henroost they had embarked on this venture as a bright, but unpolished idea. And when they reached the coop they didn't dare to snatch the chicken.

[illegible] the idea of what to do next, McPhail hammered on the postern [illegible] through a small hatch much as a [illegible] Dutchman [illegible] to inspect his guests. And [illegible] Count [illegible] and the others to fetch them an American [illegible]

[illegible] night watchman, the wellnigh Dutchman [illegible] the gate, and without [illegible] conducted them to the [illegible] And [illegible] there in the [illegible] Count [illegible] the Colonel [illegible] his [illegible] [illegible] entering the entry with a neat rabbit punch and [illegible] [illegible] nose to clip the telephone wires and purpose the [illegible] [illegible] went into the Kaiser's parlor and began to scratch their goose pimples.

COUNT VON BENTICK, THE KAISER'S HOST, greeted them. "What," asked he, noting with astonishment the uniforms of his callers, "is the purpose of your visit?"

Colonel Lea apparently began to wonder, too. For he said he would like to see the Kaiser, having a "journalistic investigation" to complete—if you can imagine any pretext more sappy. So the Count hoisted his well bred brows and withdrew a moment, conversing through an open door with what the Americans imagined to be the Kaiser. It might have been the Kaiser, too! But the kidnapers were in a state of irresolute paralysis by this time. They were transfixed by their own audacity.

Whatever Lea's and McPhail's pre-conceived notion might have been as to the proper method of snatching the All-Highest, certainly neither man expected Wilhelm to pick up his helmet, gloves and field marshal's baton and elope with them into the night.

So what did they do? They just sat down, possibly from weakness in the joints and felt like grandma's boys caught with their hands in the cookie crock. Aghast, McPhail listened while Count von Bentick telephoned for a quick squadron of Dutch guards—and don't spare the horses! And when he returned from the inner suite he brought with him the burgomeister of Amerongen.

"I," said the burgomeister to the flustered kidnapers, "am a graduate of Harvard. Will you explain your mission again?"

[illegible] tone McPhail's larynx was filled with fuzz. He said [illegible] that [illegible] as he had was for the Kaiser's ears only. If the ex-[illegible] Hohenzollern was too stiff in the neck, he said in effect, it was no skin off the [illegible] hips. Possibly, if the Kaiser had walked in just then McPhail would have asked him for his autograph and a friendly message for Mr. Wallace.

[illegible] as the palaver continued with both sides getting [illegible] and [illegible] McPhail [illegible] a brass ashtray and slipped it into his coat pocket. With native [illegible] he [illegible] at least, was going to have something, to show for his [illegible] even if he also got a bayonet through his [illegible]

OUTSIDE, SO McPHAIL RELATES, he could see 200 Dutch soldiers unloading from lorries, unslinging rifles as they ran. Army search lights flooded the grounds. Machine gunners set up their traps with muzzles pointing toward the chateau doors. Any attempt to escape, any overt act, and McPhail's baseball career, which was to be launched later in Cincinnati and Brooklyn, would have died aborning.

Cut, unbelievably, the Kaiser's courtiers bowed the Americans to the door. Bewilderment reigned and the kidnapers passed between lanes of Dutch guardsmen to their waiting car. Their passports were in order. They had a laisse passe from the Dutch consul at Liege. They were in full uniform. So they got away with it—that is McPhail got away with the Kaiser's ashtray, which is a small dish surmounted by a metal bear smoking a long stemmed metal pipe and encrusted with the Imperial German crest.

So that's McPhail's story as he told it. And this summer the man who tried to kidnap the Kaiser will try to kidnap the 1939 National League pennant, with about the same kind of forethought and plan and about the same prospect of success.

WINGS FIGHT TO HOLD 5TH PLACE AGAINST BRUINS

Fighting to retain full possession of fifth place in the N. H. L. standings, the Detroit Red Wings will put their best foot forward tonight when they take on the league leading Bruins at the Boston Garden.

UNTOLD STORIES OF THE RING

BY JACK CONWAY

It was Jack Dempsey who made the decision to punch it out with Louis Firpo in their world's heavyweight championship battle in New York, September 1923. As a result the big crowd that paid $1,177,404 to see the battle witnessed the greatest fight in the history of the American ring.

Dempsey won by a knockout in the second round, but only after Firpo had punched him through the ropes into the laps of one of the judges of the bout and a newspaper man.

Jack Conway

"I pay some of my sparring partners as high as $100 a day," said Dempsey, "and I expect that they will give me enough action to get me into condition. I don't care what they do to me. All I ask is that they permit me to let my punches fly."

KAYOS SPARRING PARTNERS

[illegible] a tiger released from [illegible] leash.

"Doc (meaning Kearns) has also talked to me about boxing Firpo for a few rounds to get a line on him," asserted Dempsey with much feeling, "but I am not going to do so.

"I thank you for the interest you have shown in me, but I am going to fight this one my own way."

"What is your own way?" asked Mickey Walker who had intense personal admiration for Dempsey as a fighting man.

"At the bell, mickey," asserted Dempsey, "I am going to come roaring out of my corner and let everything I have go behind those two fists."

[illegible] "Bulger," said Kearns, addressing Dempsey, "knows Firpo better than anybody in the fight game, and I want you to listen to him."

"I saw Firpo fight when he first came to the United States," declared Bulger. "I have followed him closely since. He is a fine, powerful fellow and a tremendous right hand punch[er]. He has a chance of knocking out anybody he can hit, but the fellow is slow and cannot box.

"To make sure of winning you must box Firpo for three or four rounds. Make him miss and he will then begin to tire. By the fifth round you can open up a bit, take a few chances, and begin to let your punches fly. You will knock Firpo out inside of ten rounds."

Berger Rated Handsomest in Red Sox Camp

There are not many tougher than Maurice Strickland, heavyweight champion of New Zealand, who also claims the title of the British Empire. Maurice, who weighs 200 pounds, will be meeting a bigger man when he takes on Jack Pallat, 215 pounds, of Cleveland, in a 10-rounder at the Argonne A. A. bouts in Mechanics tomorrow night.

M'PHAIL MOURNS PLIGHT OF BEES

By JOE CASHMAN

BRADENTON, Fla., Mar. 7—Loquacious Larry MacPhail mourns for the Bees.

They're one of half a dozen clubs, says the Brooklyn maestro, which can't hope to build up to first-division strength for years to come because of the monopoly on minor league talent held by entries like the Yankees, Red Sox, Cardinals and Tigers through their extensive farm systems.

Larry may be right, too. He's been known to be, even though his average in this respect is considerably below the stick mark of the weakest hitting Dodger.

But if he'd like to wager a quid or two on his prediction, as far as it concerns the Swarm, one Bob Quinn will gladly accommodate him.

Mr. Quinn, who happens to be the Keeper of the Bees, reckons his club this year will grab off the first division berth Mr. MacPhail is claiming for his Dodgers.

Moreover, as Boss Bob gazes on his rookie talent through eyes which have been looking at ball players for more than a half century, he sees budding stars who'll keep the Swarm in the money for as many years as Larry fears it will take the Allston entry to get up there.

PROMISING LOT

The Bees' 'prexy' could be overenthusiastic, yet, as one who saw all his old Red Sox teams and his recent National League editions, we must agree with him that he now has the most promising group of young talent in his Boston career.

For almost every position he has two or three flaming youths destined to be big league standouts with the experience gained by spending another season or two in the minors.

While other clubs are crying for catchers, for instance, there's a trio down here, any one of whom would be as good as the average second-string big league receiver if retained this year.

Stanley Andrews, husky Lynn boy, is the most natural hitter in camp next to Al Simmons. He has a rifle arm and he can carry the mail. When he learns a little more about shifting his feet back of the bat, and becomes a bit smoother and quicker in getting his pegs away, he can't miss.

Phil Masi, a young giant from Chicago who was signed as a free agent, and Charlie Sutcliffe, the Fall River youngster who jumped in from Class D to do a fine emergency catching job at the Hive last Summer, are equally as promising as Andrews.

SISTI WINS CRONIN'S PRAISE

Sebastian Sisti, 18-year-old third-sacker from Hartford, is regarded by Joe Cronin of the Red Sox as the greatest infielder of his age in the country. He can hit, field and run like nobody's business. Another year out and he should be a sensation in fast company.

Then there's Otto Huber, a 21-year-old lad from Evansville, who can play second, short and third and right now is termed by Manager Casey Stengel as the classiest defensive performer in camp, with the sole exception of Eddie Miller. And this boy hit .311 last season.

Also the 22-year-old "Heinie" Majeski, third sacker from Birmingham, who may even stick this year, and Carvel Rowell, a free agent, who is an extraordinary hitter and hasn't a lot to learn in the field to be ready.

Judge Upholds Action Of Wareham Solons

The Cape Cod Kennel Club lost its attempt to secure a permit to operate a dog racing track in the town of Wareham. Judge James J. Ronan of the State Supreme Court denied a petition brought by the club against the selectmen of Wareham who had refused to issue a license to build the track.

The selectmen granted a license on December 23, 1938, but later revoked it on January 31, 1939. The club, through its attorney, Conrad W. Crooker, sought to annul the act of revocation on the grounds that there was no hearing held by the selectmen.

Hitch in Swing Hinders Former White Socker

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 7—Boze Berger may not be the best ball player in the world, but you'd have to visit a lot of parks before you'd find a handsomer one.

Christened "Louis," the tall, broad shouldered all-round athlete from Arlington, Va., suh!, an impeccable dresser, would be a standout at any Hollywood party.

But he's not planning on going to Hollywood. He's making baseball his career and is determined to make a go of it.

Berger came to the Red Sox last winter in a straight player swap for Eric McNair.

He probably won't win a regular job this season, but he ought to make a most valuable utility man.

He played a bangup game of ball at second base for Cleveland a couple of years back, and he hopped into the breach for the White Sox at short stop last spring when Luke Appling was out with a broken leg.

PLAYED 118 GAMES

He played in 118 games last year and hit only .217. That would seem to kill his chances of ever staying in the big show, but he's a good man to have around just the same.

He hasn't been hitting them often, but he does hit them long. And the Sox recall with great pain the game in Chicago last year when Berger's two home runs cost them a ball game they wanted badly.

He has a hitch in his swing, to be sure, but I used to hear them say the same thing about Travis Jackson when "Stony" broke in back in 1923, and "Stony" not only played a sweet game for the Giants at short and third for a dozen years but improved enough to become a consistent .300 hitter.

Joe Cronin has a hunch that Berger's hitting will improve with the Red Sox.

HITTERS CAN BE MADE

Despite all this talk one hears about "hitters being born," they can be made. And I can point to Hornsby and even Cronin himself as examples.

Neither was any great shakes as a hitter when he broke into big time, but a driving ambition made top-notch hitters of them both. That and association with other good hitters.

"I think when Boze sees Vosmik and Foxxie taking their level cuts at the ball he'll unconsciously hit like them. He may cure himself of that hitch. If he does, I can name three infielders he's liable to push for their jobs," said Cronin today.

Boze is a slick fielder. Donie Bush raved about him when he saw him in action here. He's fast, too, and can throw as a rifle can shoot.

McCoy, Pastor Out for Kayoes

Both Al McCoy, N. E. heavyweight champ, and Bob Pastor, N. Y. thumper, will be shooting for k. o. victories when they meet Friday night at the Boston Garden in the 10-round feature of the Goodwin A. C. ring festival.

"We will win by a knockout inside of 5 rounds," says Jimmy Johnston, manager of Pastor.

Bill Brennan, manager of McCoy, is equally as confident.

"Do not be astounded if McCoy stops Pastor before the 10-round limit," says Bill, who is fairly beaming over the prospects with McCoy in stride for the first time in many months.

Mohamed Fahmy, Egyptian, tackles Joe Ricciotti, in the eight-round semi-final Friday night. Sixes will be Roy Worcester, standout in the freshman class of white hopes, vs. Mike Troy, Oscar Suggs vs. Jack Dubois and Martin Riley vs. Jerry Zullo.

If "Boze" Berger can only smooth out the hitch in his swing he might become a regular infielder on the 1939 edition of the Red Sox. Otherwise he has a battle on his hands to get the utility assignment over Tom Carey. "Boze" came to the Hose in a straight player trade with the Chicago White Sox, in which Eric McNair turned in his Red Sox uniform.

Bids for Race Dates Studied

The State Racing Commission today took under advisement the petition of the Outdoor Amusements, Inc., for horse racing dates at Westport, following a stormy hearing in Westport high school.

Most of the battle at the hearing revolved about the attractive racing dates from July 3 to July 22, which both Westport and Suffolk Downs now seek.

Highlights of the hearing were charges of misrepresentation exchanged by George Alpert, counsel for Outdoor Amusements, and Frank Wallis, counsel for Suffolk Downs.

O'Donnell Wins In 'Pure' Tilt

Ten knockouts were scored on a 34-bout card at the Arena last night, Joe O'Donnell of Everett was the most impressive performer on the amateur card. The Everett puncher beat Mel Smallwood of Boston in a slashing three-round affair to win honor in the 160-pound class.

112—Eddie DeAngelis, Revere, defeated Joe Castro, Boston, 3 rounds.

118—Frank Pecararo, Weymouth, defeated Pat Giganti, Everett, 3 rounds.

126—Florant Desmarais, Manchester, N. H., defeated Dick Shock, Warner, N. H., 3 rounds.

135—Albert Dutra, Cambridge, defeated Gene Margarida, Fall River, 3 rounds.

147—Ernest Andrews, Boston, defeated Vic Lange, Quincy, 3 rounds.

160—Joe O'Donnell, Everett, defeated Mal Smallwood, Boston, 3 rounds.

175—Bill Brennan, Cambridge, defeated John Hutson, Worcester, 3 rounds.

Heavyweight—Jack McCarthy, Worcester, won from Tony Ferry, Fall River, default.

"Smilin' Jack" predicts that Sid Abel and Don Deacon will make the grade next season.

Buck Jones, who will show here for the first time tonight, with the Wings, is another Owen Sound boy . . . He played with the Harringay Racers of England last year . . . Dick Gill, the former B. C. middle distance star, who now wears the Unicorn, will run in Toronto one week from Saturday.

So little has come up from Bradenton concerning Sebby Sisti that it would appear as though the boys were instructed to lay off . . . Incidentally, Bees fans would appreciate some news about Bob Kahle's arm . . . If his arm is right, Bob will make any of the Bees step to get that third base berth!

Fred Janke, who captained the Wolverines in '38, has been enrolled as one of the first University of Michigan students to take the air pilots' training course offered through a Federal subsidy . . . Coach Walter French has issued a call for West Point battery men . . .

Tiny Thompson and Marty Barry are as inseparable as they were when members of the Bruins . . . Tommy Bridges, the Detroit pitcher, was awarded the Michigan auto license T B 10. The "10" is Tommy's baseball uniform number . . .

Tommy Filmore is in town demonstrating his electrical system of refereeing hockey games . . . He has yet to receive any adverse criticism . . . Filmore has also perfected a similar device for basketball . . .

Many of the local hockey fans are going to New York to take in the second Bruins-Rangers game listed for Sunday night . . . Followers of amateur hockey are displaying more than usual interest in the two-game series between the Olympics and the Quebec Aces to be played Saturday and Sunday at the Garden.

Dempsey Ordered to Explain

DETROIT, March 7 (INS)—Former Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey today was ordered to appear before Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea to explain his part in a wrestling exhibition McCrea described as "the most disgraceful thing I have ever heard of."

Dempsey refereed the match between Bill Curry and Bull Montana, and after awarding the bout to Montana, Dempsey was forced to convince Curry he was the loser.

Curry, a former fighter, squared off with Dempsey and was promptly belted through the ropes. He got back, grabbed Dempsey, and both fell from the ring. The pair fought amid the ringside seats until police and ushers separated them.

Race Board Puts Off Garden Dog Hearing

The State Racing Commission today postponed a hearing on the license application of the Greyhound Racing Corporation to hold dog races at the Boston Garden pending decision on a petition to State Supreme Court, returnable Friday, for a writ to block the racing.

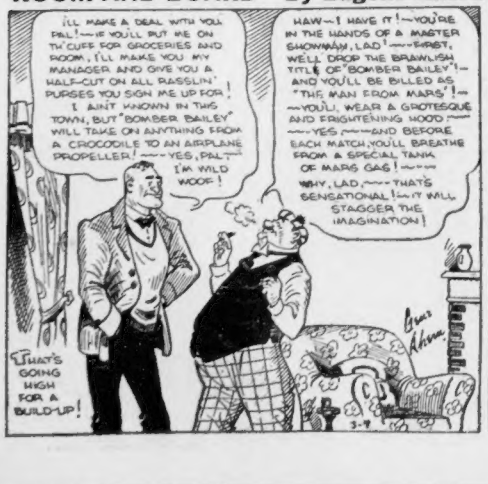
ROOM AND BOARD By Eugene Ahern



I'LL MAKE A DEAL WITH YOU PAL! — IF YOU'LL PUT ME ON TH' CUFF FOR GROCERIES AND ROOM, I'LL MAKE YOU MY MANAGER AND GIVE YOU A HALF-CUT ON ALL RASSLIN' PURSES YOU SIGN ME UP FOR!
I AIN'T KNOWN IN THIS TOWN, BUT "BOMBER BAILEY" WILL TAKE ON ANYTHING FROM A CROCODILE TO AN AIRPLANE PROPELLER! — YES, PAL — I'M WILD WOOF!
HAW—! HAVE IT! — YOU'RE IN THE HANDS OF A MASTER SHOWMAN, LAD! — FIRST, WE'LL DROP THE BRAWLISH TITLE OF "BOMBER BAILEY"! — AND YOU'LL BE BILLED AS "THE MAN FROM MARS"! — YOU'LL WEAR A GROTESQUE AND FRIGHTENING HOOD — YES — AND BEFORE EACH MATCH, YOU'LL BREATHE FROM A SPECIAL TANK OF MARS GAS! — WHY, LAD — THAT'S SENSATIONAL! — IT WILL STAGGER THE IMAGINATION!
THAT'S GOING HIGH FOR A BUILD-UP!

Maurice Strickland Better Than Heeney | Takes on Pallat In Boston Bow

MAURICE STRICKLAND, New Zealand heavyweight who clashes with Jack Pallat of Cleveland in a ten-round bout at the Argonne A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night, is a better fighter than Tom Heeney, but he will probably never make as much money as the "Hard Rock."

Heeney came to the United States from New Zealand after Gene Tunney had won the title from Jack Dempsey, and in a comparatively short space of time earned $250,000. Heeney's big money match was with Gene Tunney.

Tom received $100,000 from this tussle, and one of the most crushing defeats ever handed to a boxer. Tunney knocked Heeney out in eleven rounds after cutting him to ribbons with sharp, well timed punches.

Tunney wanted to retire as undefeated heavyweight champion of the world, and so hand-picked Heeney as an opponent. Gene had a contract with Tex Rickard calling for a guarantee of $525,000. He wanted to get this huge purse as well as an opponent he was almost sure to defeat.

As a result, Tunney passed up Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko for the heavyweight from the land down under.

Heeney's most impressive American victory was a one-round knockout of Jim Maloney in New York. He then held Jack Sharkey to a 15-round draw after which he was beaten by Maloney in the Boston Garden before 18,000 persons.

Strickland, a six foot 200 pounder, is a good boxer, and also hits hard. The average heavyweight doesn't want any part of the New Zealander which is some indication of his class.

Pallat, a former national amateur heavyweight champion, considers the Strickland bout an opportunity for ring advancement. He argues that if he is able to win over Strickland that he will be in a position to demand bouts with the leading heavyweights, and he is correct.

Roy Lazer Is Rated Highly

ROY LAZER OF Newark, who takes on "Tiger" Warrenton in another ten-round bout on the Argonne A. A. card, is rated highly since he recently upset Leroy Haynes. Lazer is a heavy puncher, and will try to crash his best Sunday punch to Warrenton's jaw.

Warrenton has looked impressive in recent starts, and if he disposes of Lazer he will toss a challenge at Strickland in the event the latter gets the duke over Pallat.

Pat Comiskey, Jersey heavyweight, is in town with Strickland. This 18-year-old hopeful will toss leather at Julio Ortensio of Spain in a six-round bout.

Two former Hearst All-America stars will sparkle on the Argonne card. They are Johnny Hayes of Roxbury, All-Eastern 175 pound champion, who will oppose Sam Maitempo of Willimantic, Ct., and Johnny Shkor, Baltimore heavyweight, who will take on Johnny Lesco of Willimantic, Ct.

In all there will be 20 heavyweights on the card tomorrow night. A rather healthy order of fistic beef.

Pastor Still Hopes to Get Louis Go

JIMMY JOHNSTON believes that Joe Louis will eventually have to give Bob Pastor a crack at his title.

"The public will tire of seeing Louis take on circus freaks like Tony Galento," orated Johnston. "Everybody knows that Galento hasn't got a chance against Louis. The Louis-Galento bout should be staged as part of the world's fair sideshows rather than as a heavyweight championship bout.

"Galento refused to meet Pastor, and you cannot blame him as Bob would have knocked him out.

"Louis passed up a return match with Pastor for the soft touch with Galento.

"Pastor will keep active, and if he continues to win the public will insist that Louis meet him.

"I look for Pastor to score a decisive victory over Al McCoy at the Boston Garden on Friday night. I'll admit McCoy looked good as he recently outboxed Buddy Knox, but you cannot rate Knox in the same class with Pastor.

"Pastor is a superior boxer to McCoy, and also hits much harder. Didn't Bob score two knockouts in his last tussle with McCoy?

"I have tipped my Boston friends to place a few bobs on Pastor to beat McCoy and to parlay the winnings on Pastor to conquer Louis."

McCoy has been in town since Sunday night, and impressed those persons who saw him work out. Al is fast, is punching fast and true, and is of the opinion he will score a decisive win over Pastor.

Random Shots at the Target

I AM STILL getting letters from fans as to the identity of "The Shadow" . . . Bronko Nagurski has the backing of a Roxbury fan who signed himself "Kennedy" . . . Two Springfield boys say that if I reveal to them the identity of "The Shadow" they will keep the matter a secret . . . I regret I was bound to secrecy when I was told by "The Shadow" who he really is.

Gus Sonnenberg insists he will unmask "The Shadow" when they clash in their bout for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at the Garden on March 16.

6 Telephone Teams Enter Pin Tourney

By WALTER KILEY

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company comes in with six strong teams to make hot competition in the fourth annual Boston Evening American-Daily Record bowling championships, which get underway March 25th at the Huntington Club.

All six of these New England Tel. and Tel. teams have been bowling as units throughout the winter season, and the boys appear ready to cut inroads in the prize lists.

Local No. 1 team is composed of Golden, Ryan, O'Brien, Harris and Glynn; District No. 1 Supervisors, Shyne, Birmingham, Berkeley, O'Brien and Maloney; Tool Room, Montgomery, McKenney, Flynn, Hastings and Hinckley; District No. 2, Lawrence Duffy, Fred Baker, John Hamilton, John Norris and W. P. Cox.

District No. 1, Blaisdell, Dynan, Ritchie, Driscoll and Dolan; Installation, Bowser, Hannon, Terixeira, Kaveny and Davis.

ENTRIES POURING IN

First schoolgirl entry received this year came from pretty Barbara Kruschwitz of Mount St. Joseph Academy, Brighton. This able girl pinster is making her second and what she hopes will be successful title attempt.

Entries are really rolling in now.

Among today's team entries were those of the Nonantum Spa of Newton, Cushman's Bakery of Lynn; and Eddie's Diner of Maynard, the latter team composed of H. Morgan, G. Stuart, A. Oats, D. Lent and S. Sebastian.

First of the schoolboys to register were Francis McPherson and William Robert Welch of Quincy, a town which was well represented for the past two years with large and outstanding groups of bowlers from North Quincy High school.

START ONLY FEW DAYS OFF

The tourney directors urge New England bowling fans to shoot their blanks—with entry fees enclosed—along immediately.

The tourney is now little more than a couple of weeks away, and promises to be bigger and better than ever.

Park Dept. Stages Wrestling Joust

Indoor wrestling champions in all classes will be crowned next Saturday at Curtis Hall, Jamaica Plain, when more than one hundred novice grapplers converge on the city sports center for the annual tourney conducted by the Boston Park Department.

Wrestling under intercollegiate rules, the erstwhile matmen will compete in the team groups representing the eleven city gymnasia, teams which were chosen last week after local eliminations.
